For each client, it is specifically chosen which laboratory tests are requested. This is tailored to the complaints per person. In case of immune system complaints, we often test for food allergies (202 euros*), and/or the intestinal microbiome (243 euros*). We can also test for infections (viruses and bacteria), toxic substances, heavy metal load, genes (SNPS in connection with detoxification), etc. During the intake, advice is given on what is necessary, and the tests can be carried out as a whole or in stages.

D. Rates supplements

During our treatment, nutritional supplements are prescribed if necessary, with the aim of improving health. This includes supplements to improve intestinal resistance, remove waste products, improve the immune system and any natural killers for bacteria, viruses, fungi and parasites. The costs of this depend on the type and amount of supplements that are advised with regard to the complaints and the treatment plan.
